

As a Catholic school, we value Christian stewardship of our Earth. John Paul II Collegiate, in North Battleford, under the guidance of teachers Rhea Good and Jeff Kardynal, started a garden project this past growing season to practice stewardship in the form of a vegetable garden.

Kardynal's PAA classes and student volunteers built four raised-beds for a small garden in the student parking lot area. Good's Functional Integrated program planted and tended the garden all spring and summer. The garden beautified our school grounds and served as a daily reminder to give thanks for our abundant food supply.

Vegetables harvested from our school garden were made into a delicious soup and on Wednesday, September 21, 2016 all students and staff were invited to Pope's Corner during the lunch hour to enjoy this Garden Harvest Soup.

O taste and see that the Lord is good... Psalm 34:8
