This year marks Feehan's 40th anniversary as proud host to this event. The staff and entire student body—more than 550 people—run the event. This involves officiating, timing races, record-keeping and escorting athletes.

The athletes, who range in age from 5 to 75, will compete in a variety of events including ball throw, shot put, 50-metre and 100-metre dashes, and long jump.

The Special Olympics provides people with intellectual disabilities the opportunity to realize their potential, develop their physical fitness, demonstrate courage, and experience friendship through athletic participation.
